Dear Chairmen Rogers and Cochran and Ranking Members Lowey and Mikulski:

On behalf of the undersigned organizations representing the full spectrum of American higher education, we write to request your support for the critical programs under your authority that serve students, institutions and researchers.

We appreciate the challenges your committees face in setting appropriations levels across a multitude of worthy programs and are grateful for your efforts to preserve funding for student aid, institutional support and research programs in a challenging fiscal climate. These efforts recognize the fact that support for postsecondary education and research builds a stronger economic base for our country, returning short- and long-term rewards on the federal investment.

While last year’s budget deal and subsequent omnibus allowed for the partial restoration of funding to many of these programs, several of the programs identified below have not seen funding restored to pre-sequester levels, and all of the programs have substantial need if they are to best serve students and families.

Student Aid

As the cornerstone of federal financial aid, it is critical that Congress fund the discretionary portion of Pell Grant Program at a level sufficient to maintain the scheduled increase in the maximum award to $5,935. In order to ensure the stability of the program, we also request that the current annual inflation increase be made permanent. We strongly support the restoration of year-round Pell eligibility for students at all enrollment levels, to provide necessary funding for students studying throughout the academic calendar to accelerate their progress. Finally, we commend the administration for its Pell Bonus and Second Chance Pell proposals and encourage Congress to examine ways to address the goals it has identified.

We also strongly encourage Congress to use the recent extension to the Perkins Loan Program to revisit ways to improve and fully restore the program, including the restoration of graduate student eligibility.

For the other financial aid programs, we would request:

- Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG): A total of $757 million, which is an increase of $24 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

- Federal Work Study (FWS): A total of $990 million, which is level with FY 2016 funding.

- The Federal TRIO Programs: A total of $980 million, which is an increase of $80 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

- The Federal GEAR UP Program: A total of $343 million, which is an increase of $20 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

- Graduate Assistance in Areas of National Need (GAANN): A total of $31 million, which is an increase of $1.7 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

Institutional Support, Career and Technical Education and Other Programs

The programs listed below provide critical support for institutions serving historically underserved populations (including historically black colleges and universities, Hispanic-serving institutions, tribal colleges and universities, and others), career and workforce training programs, specialized academic studies as well as initiatives to improve completion and performance.

For these programs, we request:

- Strengthening Institutions (Title III, Part A): A total of $95 million, which is $8 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

- Strengthening Institutions - Tribal Colleges and Universities (Title III, Part A, Sec. 316): A total of $60 million, which is $4 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

- Strengthening Institutions - Historically Black Colleges (Title III, Part B, Sec. 323; Discretionary Funding): A total of $267 million, which is $22 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

Research Programs

Federal support for research and development is an essential component to maintaining America’s leadership in the innovation economy, allowing us to compete and succeed in the global marketplace. The research performed on college campuses provides countless benefits to the economy of our nation and the well-being of our citizens. We urge your committees to continue the investments made in FY 2016 and provide the following increases to important scientific research programs across multiple agencies:

ARPA-ED: A total of $50 million, which is $20 million above FY 2016 appropriations.

National Institutes of Health: A total of $34.5 billion, which is $2,400 million above FY 2016 appropriations.
